

Lions Jerry Egge and Deane Skinner present a $2,500 check to the St. Joseph's Food Bank

In response to the COVID-19 emergency, the Cheyenne Sunrise Lions Club <https://www.lionsofwyoming.org/sunrise-lions-club.html> voted on April 13 to donate $2,500 to the St. Joseph's Food Pantry. By rearranging funding of some project priorities, the donation will support one of Cheyenne's local food pantries that are providing a needed service during the current COVID-19 pandemic emergency. In the last year, the club has also supported the Empty Stocking Fund, Needs, The Friday Food Bag Foundation, and The Wyoming First Lady's Hunger Initiative.

The Sunrise Lions Club's support of the visually impaired and vision improvement will continue to be their top priority. The major source of the club's project funding comes from the annual Ride for Sight charity bike ride.

Cheyenne Sunrise Lions Club is one of three Lions Clubs in Cheyenne and part of the 1.4 million members in the world's largest service organization. The Sunrise Lions was founded in December 1973 and is led this year by Lion President Denise Miller. St. Joseph's Food Pantry is a project of St. Joseph Catholic Church of Cheyenne <https://www.stjosephscheyenneye.org/food-pantry>.
